

Whitewave Foods Recognized As Top Workplace By Denver Post For Second Consecutive Year

BROOMFIELD, COLO. (April 14, 2014) – WhiteWave Foods, a leading consumer packaged food and beverage company, has once again been named to the Denver Post Top Workplaces list, an annual compilation of the best places to work in the Denver metro area. Out of the more than 1,300 local companies invited to participate in the program, WhiteWave ranked 14 of the 25 “Large Employers,” which includes companies with more than 500 employees.

“The recognition of WhiteWave as a Top Workplace by the Denver Post is truly a testament to the passion and dedication our employees bring to their work,” said Gregg Engles, CEO of The WhiteWave Foods Company. “We have a talented, entrepreneurial team that is completely immersed in delivering on our potential. Not only do our people want to make a difference, they are empowered to do so, which is why we’re committed to celebrating our employees, and the work we achieve together as we change the way the world eats for the better.”

Companies participating in the Top Workplaces program are evaluated based on feedback from employee surveys. The survey measured several workplace-related qualities, such as leadership, career opportunities, workplace flexibility, compensation and benefits.

WhiteWave offers its employees competitive salaries and a variety of benefits, ranging from reimbursements for health clubs and alternative transportation to free on-site yoga and Pilates classes.

The Denver Post published the complete list of Top Workplaces on April 13. For more information about the Top Workplaces list, please visit <http://www.denverpost.com/topworkplaces>. For information about WhiteWave Foods, including career opportunities, please visit <http://www.whitewave.com/>.
